Function and use:

Safety instructions: S23; S24/25 bismuth neodecanoate is used as a catalyst in the polyurethane industry, showing high catalytic activity, widely used in spraying, high-density elastomers, and microporous elastomer systems.

Has the following characteristics:

Bismuth neodecanoate is a powerful gel catalyst, which promotes the completion of the reaction later. It shows the delayed system viscosity when the level of intermolecular reaction is low at the beginning of the reaction;

Environmentally friendly products that can replace catalysts containing lead and tin;

In ordinary polyurethane reaction systems, microporous elastomer systems and high-density semi-rigid foam systems enhance the stability of system reactions.
